Squire J. W. Horton.
Squire J. W. Horton, one of Saxton's prominent business men, was a son of John and Mary Horton, deceased, and was born in Broad Top township, Huntingdon county, June 26, 1847, and died at his home in Saxton, Sunday, November 11, from obstruction of the bowels, aged 59 years, four months and 15 days.

On December 21, 1876, he was united in marriage with Miss Mary A. Mock of Paxia. One son, Charles D., survives him, son, Alvin R., having died in 1903. He is also survived by the following brothers and sisters: Solomon S. of Martinsburg, William C. of Winfield, Kan., Philip A. of Trough Creek, Mrs. Malissa McClain of Mt. Squire Horton was a man of sterling qualities and an honest, upright citizen, who will be greatly missed. He was a member of the M. E. church for 45 years.

John H. Wolford

John H. Wolford, a well known farmer residing in Londonderry township, one and one-half miles east of Fossilville, died at his residence Tuesday morning, November 6. The deceased was born July 28, 1849, on the farm of his late father, Adam S. Wolford, and resided there during his life time; becoming the owner of the place soon after arriving at manhood.

He was very industrious, and by hard labor and habits of economy, together with good business acumen acquired a competency. Being possessed of a very genial disposition, coupled with liberality and hospitality, he gained a large circle of friends. In all his transactions he practiced the doctrine of the square deal and was prompt in meeting every obligation. In everything pertaining to the religious, political and secular welfare of his community he took an active interest and by his death the township loses an upright and useful citizen.

The deceased was married twice; his first wife being Susan Elizabeth Coughenour, who died September 24, 1880. To this union there were born two children: Harvey E. Wolford, who resides at Gravel Pit, and Mrs. Howard L. Bohn of Rainsburg. The deceased's second wife was Mary J. Bowser, who, with the following children, survives him: Mrs. Jasper Luman of Hyndman, Mrs. Charles Beals, Elmore May and Robert J., all of whom reside at home.

Mr. Wolford was a member of the Evangelical church at Gravel Pit. Funeral services conducted by his pastor, Rev. L. E. Haviland, were held Thursday morning at Lybarger Lutheran church at Madley, where a large concourse of relatives and friends had assembled. The remains were interred in the beautiful cemetery adjoining.

Mrs. Charlotte White

Charlotte, widow of Thomas W. White, died at her home in Saxton at 7:10 a. m. Tuesday, November 13, of congestion of the lungs, having been in ill health for over a year. She was a daughter of George and Elizabeth Rhodes and was born near Saxton on February 16, 1847, being, at the time of her death, 59 years, eight months and 27 days old. In 1872 she was united in marriage to Thomas W. White, who died in 1904. To this union were born four children, one of whom, a son, died in 1889. The following daughters survive her: Winona, wife of Rev. W. H. Landis of Rockwood; Emma, wife of Dr. H. R. Brightbill of Saxton, and Ethel at home. She also leaves three brothers and a sister: Jacob Rhodes of Philadelphia and James and Daniel Rhodes and Mrs. S. H. Little, of Saxton.

The death of Mrs. White removes from the community one who had endeared herself to all with whom she associated. She was a kind sister, a loving and devoted mother and a true friend. Funeral services were held at the late home at one o'clock Thursday afternoon, conducted by Rev. C. F. Althouse, and interment was made in St. Luke's cemetery in Woodcock Valley.

Mrs. Charlotte V. Kinzey

Mrs. Charlotte V., wife of John Kinzey of Schellsburg, died at her home Tuesday evening, November 6, aged 64 years, after an illness of about six days.

She was a kind neighbor and was always willing to do her part when called upon in time of need. She was a member of the Lutheran church and was a liberal contributor toward the support of the church, Sunday school and Mite Society. She leaves to mourn their loss her husband and the following children: Mrs. Martha Boyd of Philadelphia,

Miss Myrtle Diehl

Myrtle Diehl of near here died Thursday night at the home of her father, George Diehl, after a lingering illness of pulmonary consumption. Had her life been spared 12 days longer she would have reached the age of 21 years, a time in life when we look least on care and most on the joys and pleasures. She leaves to mourn their loss a father, one sister, Mrs. Howard Diehl of near New Buena Vista, and four brothers: Frank and Harvey, of Pittsburgh, and Gilson and Orange, at home. Their mother preceded her to the spirit world several years ago.

WASHINGTON LETTER

The Whole Nation Is Interested In the President's

VISIT TO PANAMA

Numerous Changes to Be Made in the Official Family—Durand Resigns
as British Ambassador.

Washington, D. C. November 13.—President Roosevelt has started for Panama aboard the battleship Louisiana and will establish a precedent by taking the first trip that a President has ever undertaken outside of the United States during his term of office. He is accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary Latta, of the White House staff, Surgeon General Rixey of the Navy and some of the White House servants. He went down the river on the yacht Mayflower and transferred to the battleship at Wolf Trap Rock in Chesapeake Bay. The departure from the Navy Yard was quite a social affair, the President being bid good-bye by the French Ambassador and Madam Jusserand, Postmaster General and Mrs. Cortelyou, Commissioner General of the Louisiana have been very luxuriantly fitted up and the battleship, in common with other warships of the navy, is equipped with wireless telegraph instruments, that will keep her indirectly in touch with Washington during the whole of her voyage. The President will make use of his time during the six days' sail from here to Colon in preparing his message to Congress. It would be a good chance for a rest, but the President seems to think that work is all the rest he needs so long as he can get a chance to do it uninterruptedly.

The party will remain on the Isthmus three days and during that time will go from Colon to Panama, looking over all the work that has been done on the big ditch. Arrangements have been made to give the President a very cordial welcome, and President Amador, of the Republic of Panama, will be present with the Governors of all seven of his provinces at a great reception to President Roosevelt in the capital. Dispatches from Panama already announce that people of the interior towns are arriving in great numbers, and it will be made a gala occasion.

Announcement has been made from the White House of two more Cabinet changes that will involve the shifting of some minor position in the Federal departments. Attorney General Moody, it has been understood for some time, would go from the Department of Justice, and it is now announced that he will succeed Associate Justice Brown in the Supreme Court. Secretary Hitchcock will also resign from the Interior Department, and will be succeeded by James A. Garfield, at present head of the Bureau of Corporations. Secretary Hitchcock will quit the government service altogether, decidedly against the wish of the President, who offered him the Ambassadorship to Paris, in succession to Ambassador McCormick, who is returning to this country. Secretary Hitchcock declined, however, on the plea that he had already served eight years in the department aside from his previous services as Minister to St. Petersburg, and was entitled to a rest. There will be a number of other changes in the diplomatic corps, following the retirement of Mr. Meyer from St. Petersburg, to a position in the Cabinet. Lloyd Griscome, now Minister to Brazil, will fill Mr. Meyer's place as Ambassador at St. Petersburg. There has been considerable speculation as to Mr. Griscome's successor in Rio Janeiro, and the most generally accepted choice for the place is Charles Page Bryan, Minister to Portugal, who was formerly Minister to Brazil before that position was raised to the post of an Embassy.

The most important change in the diplomatic corps that has happened since the death of Sir Julian Pauncefote comes with the resignation of the British Ambassador, Sir Henry Mortimer Durand. He has served in this country for a comparatively short time, succeeding Sir Michael Herbert after the latter's death in office. He has made a number of friends in Washington and his retirement will be quite generally regretted both socially and officially.

A Serious Accident

Emory Rawlins, son of Jacob Rawlins, a farmer of Colerain township, met with a serious accident last Saturday morning. A corn-shredder was being operated on the farm of Thomas Cessna, about four miles west of Rainsburg and young Rawlins was feeding the machine, when his hand caught. His arm was drawn into the machinery and so badly crushed that Dr. Lessig, who was called in, decided it was necessary to amputate the member. Dr. Walter McCoy, U. S. Army Surgeon, who is here on a visit, was quickly sent for and performed the operation. The arm was taken off about three inches below the shoulder. The young man showed considerable courage and at this time is doing as well as can be expected. He is still at the home of Thomas Cessna.

Frank Cowperthwaite, eldest son of the former editor of the Hawkeye, is seriously ill at his home in Philadelphia with typhoid fever. He is a traveler for a large business house in that city and, against the advice of his physician, left on his usual trip. While in Greensburg he became ill and at once returned home. He grew rapidly worse and there is now little hope of his recovery.

Thursday evening between 9 and 10 o'clock, a report was heard at this place, like that of an explosion. Every house for miles around was shaken so that the window panes rattled and even at some places dishes were displaced in cupboards. Up to this time no one is able to account for the mystery. The shock was not unlike that of a light earthquake.—Henrietta Cor., Altoona Tribune.

The barn of Ex-County Commissioner S. Baker, in Snake Spring township, was destroyed by fire last week, together with its contents of grain, hay and machinery. The fire started from a heated journal of a fodder shredder. The fire spread so rapidly that even the shredder could not be removed. The insurance of $1,800 on the barn, adjoining shed and the contents of both will not cover more than two-thirds of the loss.

Every Two Minutes

Physicians tell us that all the blood in a healthy human body passes through the heart once in every two minutes. If this action becomes irregular the whole body suffers. Poor health follows poor blood; Scott's Emulsion makes the blood pure. One reason why is such a great aid is because it passes so quickly into the blood. It is partly digested before it enters the stomach; a double advantage in this. Less work for the stomach; quicker and more direct benefits. To get the greatest amount of good with the least possible effort is the desire of everyone in poor health. Scott's Emulsion does just that. A change for the better takes place even before you expect it.

THE REFUGEES

By A. CONAN DOYLE,
Author of "The Return of Sherlock Holmes"

COPYRIGHT, 1902, BY HARPER & BROTHERS

It was clear to the American that some sudden calamity had befallen, so he aided his comrade and the groans to saguac and bried. Five minutes later they were flying upon their way, and in little more than an hour their steeds, all reeking and foam flecked, were pulled up outside the high house in the Rue St. Martin. De Catinat sprang from his saddle and rushed upstairs, while Amos followed in his own leisurely fashion.

The old Huguenot and his beautiful daughter were seated at one side of the great fireplace, her hand in his, and they sprang up together, she to throw herself with a glad cry into the arms of her lover and he to grasp the hand which his nephew held out to him.

At the other side of the fireplace, with a very long pipe in his mouth and a cup of wine upon a settle beside him, sat a strange looking man, with grizzled hair and beard, a fleshy, red, projecting nose and two little gray eyes, which twinkled out from under huge brindled brows. His long, thin face was lined and seamed with wrinkles, crossing and recrossing everywhere, but fanning out in hundreds from the corners of his eyes. It was set in an unchanging expression, and as it was of the same color all over, as dark as the darkest walnut, it might have been some quaint figurehead cut out of a coarse grained wood. He was clad in a blue serge jacket, a pair of red breeches smeared at the knees with tar, clean gray worsted stockings, large steel buckles over his coarse, square toed shoes, and beside him, balanced upon the top of a thick oaken cudgel, was a weather stained silver laced hat. His gray shot hair was gathered up behind into a short, stiff tail, and a seaman's hanger, with a brass handle, was girded to his waist by a tarnished leather belt.

De Catinat had been too occupied to take notice of this singular individual, but Amos Green gave a shout of delight at the sight of him, and ran forward to greet him.

"Why, Captain Ephraim," cried Amos in English, "who ever would have thought of finding you here? De Catinat, this is my old friend Ephraim Savage, under whose charge I came here."

"Anchor's apeak, lad, and the hatches down," said the stranger in the peculiar drawing voice which the New Englanders had retained from the English Puritans.

"And when do you sail?"

"As soon as your foot is on her deck, if Providence serve us with wind and tide. And how has all gone with thee, Amos?"

"Right well. I have much to tell you of."

De Catinat and his relatives were far too engrossed with their own affairs to give a thought to the others. De Catinat told his tale in a few short, bitter sentences, the injustice that had been done him, his dismissal from the king's service and the ruin which had come upon the Huguenots of France. Adele, as is the angel instinct of woman, thought only of her lover and his misfortunes as she listened to his story, but the old merchant tottered to his feet when he heard of the revocation of the edict.

"What am I to do?" he cried. "What am I to do? I am too old to begin my life again."

"Never fear, uncle," said De Catinat heartily. "There are other lands beyond France."

"But not for me. No, no; I am too old. Lord, but thy hand is heavy upon thy servant. What shall I do and whither shall I turn?" He wrung his hands in his perplexity.

"What is amiss with him, then, Amos?" asked the seaman.

"He and his must leave the country, Ephraim."

"And why?"

"Because they are Protestants and the king will not abide their creed."

Ephraim Savage was across the room in an instant and had inclosed the old merchant's thin hand in his own great knotted fist. There was a brotherly sympathy in his strong grip and rugged, weather stained face.

"Tell this man that we shall see him through, Amos. Tell him that we've got a country where he'll just fit in like a bung in a barrel. Tell him that religion is free to all there. Tell him that if he wants to come the Golden Rod is waiting with her anchor apeak and her cargo aboard."

"Then we must come at once," said De Catinat as he listened to the cordial message which was conveyed to his uncle. "Tonight the orders will be out, and tomorrow it may be too late."

"But my business!" cried the merchant.

"Take what valuables you can and leave the rest. Better that than lose all, and liberty into the bargain."

And so at last it was arranged. That very night, within five minutes of the closing of the gates, there passed out of Paris a small party of five, three upon horseback and two in a closed carriage which bore several weighty boxes upon the top. They were the first leaves flying before the hurricane.

the earnest of that great multitude who were within the next few months to stream along every road which led from France.

Thanks to the early tidings which the guardsman had brought with him, his little party were now ahead of the news. At Rouen all was quiet, and Captain Ephraim Savage before evening had brought both them and such property as they had saved aboard his brigantine, the Golden Rod. It was but a little craft, some seventy tons burden, but at a time when so many were putting out to sea in open boats, preferring the wrath of nature to that of the king, it was a refuge indeed. The same night the seaman drew up his anchor and began to slowly make his way down the winding river.

With the early dawn the river broadened out and each bank trended away, leaving a long, funnel shaped estuary between. Ephraim Savage snuffed the air and paced the deck briskly, with a twinkle in his keen gray eyes. The wind had fallen away, but there was still enough to drive them slowly upon their course.

"Where's the gal?" he asked.

"She's in my cabin," said Amos Green. "I thought that maybe she could manage there until we got across."

"Where will you sleep yourself, then?"

"Tut! A litter of spruce boughs and a sheet of birch bark over me have been enough all these years. What would I ask better than this deck of soft white pine and my blanket?"

"Very good. The old man and his nephew—him with the blue coat—can have the two empty bunks. But you must speak to that man, Amos. I'll have no philandering aboard my ship, lad; no whispering or cuddling or any such foolishness."

"It's a pity that we left so quick, or they might have been married before we started. She's a good girl, Ephraim, and he a fine man, for all that their ways are not the same as ours."

"But what is the matter with the old man? He doesn't seem easy in his mind," said Captain Savage.

The old merchant had been leaning over the bulwarks, looking back with a drawn face and weary eyes at the red curving track behind them which marked the path to Paris. Adele had come up now with not a thought to spare upon the dangers and troubles which lay in front of her as she chafed the old man's thin cold hands and whispered words of love and comfort into his ears.

"We are always in the hollow of God's hand," he whispered, "but, oh, Adele, it is a dreadful thing to feel his fingers moving under us."

"Come with us, uncle," said De Catinat, passing his arm under that of the old man. "It is long since you have rested. And you, Adele, I pray that you will go and sleep, my poor darling, for it has been a weary journey. Go now to please me, and when you wake both France and your troubles will lie behind you."

When father and daughter had left the deck De Catinat made his way aft again to where Amos Green and the captain were standing.

"I am glad to get them below, Amos," said he, "for I fear that we may have trouble yet."

"And how?"

"You see the white road which runs by the southern bank of the river. Twice within the last half hour I have seen horsemen spurring for dear life along it. Where the spires and smoke are yonder is Rouen, and thither it was that these men went. I know not who would ride so madly at such an hour unless they were the messengers of the king. Ah, see, there is a third one!"

On the white band which wound among the green meadows a black dot could be seen, which moved along with great rapidity, vanished behind a clump of trees and then reappeared again, making for the distant city.

Captain Savage drew out his glass and gazed at the rider.

"Aye, aye," said he as he snapped it up again. "It is a soldier, sure enough. I can see the glint of the scabbard which he carries on his larboard side. I think that we shall have more wind soon. With a breeze we can show our heels to anything in French waters, but a galley or an armed boat would overhaul us now."

De Catinat, who, though he could speak little English, had learned in America to understand it pretty well, looked anxiously at Amos Green. "I fear that we shall bring trouble on this good captain," said he, "and that the loss of his cargo and ship may be his reward for having befriended us. Ask him whether he would not prefer to land us on the north bank. With our money we might make our way into the lowlands."

Ephraim Savage looked at his passenger with eyes which had lost something of their sternness. "Young man," said he, "I see that you can understand something of my talk."

De Catinat nodded.

"I tell you, then, that I am a bad man to beat. Any man that was ever shipmate with me would tell you as much. I just jam my helm and keep my course as long as God will let me. D'ye see?"

De Catinat again nodded, though, in truth, the seaman's metaphors left him with but a very general sense of his meaning.

While the Puritan seaman had been talking his eyes had kept wandering from the clouds to the flopping sails and back. Such wind as there was came in little short puffs, and the canvas either drew full or was absolutely slack. The fleecy shreds of cloud above, however, traveled swiftly across the blue sky. It was on these that the captain fixed his gaze, and he watched them like a man who is working out a problem in his mind. They were abreast of Honfleur now and about half a mile out from it. All was quiet on the curving quay and on the white moon fort, over which floated the little flag with the golden fleur de lis. The port lay on their quarter now, and they were drawing away more quickly as the breeze freshened. De Catinat, glancing back, had almost made up his mind that their fears were quite groundless when they were brought back in an instant.

Round the corner of the mole a great dark boat dashed into view ringed round with foam from her flying prow and from the ten pairs of oars which swung from either side of her. A dainty white ensign drooped over her stern, and in her bows the sun's light was caught by a heavy brass carrouade. The captain brought his glass to bear upon them and whistled; then he glanced up at the clouds once more.

"Thirty men," said he, "and they go three paces to our two. You, sir, take your blue coat off this deck or you'll bring trouble upon us. The Lord will look after his own if they'll only keep from foolishness. Get these hatches off, Tomlinson. So! Where's Jim Sturt and Hiram Jefferson? Let them stand by to clap them on again when I whistle. Starboard; starboard! Keep her as full as she'll draw. Now, Amos, and you, Tomlinson, come here until I have a word with you."

The three stood in consultation upon the poop, glancing back at their pursuer. There could be no doubt that the wind was freshening. It blew briskly in their faces as they looked back, but it was not steady yet, and the boat was rapidly overhauling them. Already they could see the faces of the marines who sat in the stern and the gleam of the lighted linstock which the gunner held in his hand.

"Holah!" cried an officer in excellent English. "Lay her to or we fire!"

"Who are you, and what do you want?" shouted Ephraim Savage in a voice that might have been heard from the bank.

"We come in the king's name, and we want a party of Huguenots from Paris who came on board of your vessel at Rouen."

"Brace back the foreyard and lay her to!" shouted the captain. "Drop a ladder over the side there and look smart. So! Now we are ready for them."

The yard was swung round, and the vessel lay quietly rising and falling on the waves. The boat dashed alongside, her brass cannon trained upon the brigantine, and her squad of marines with their fingers upon their triggers ready to open fire. They grinned and shrugged their shoulders when they saw that their sole opponents were three unarmed men upon the poop. The officer was on deck in an instant, with his drawn sword in his hand.

"Come up, two of you," he cried. "You stand here at the head of the ladder, sergeant. Throw up a rope, and you can fix it to this stanchion. Keep awake down there and be all ready to fire. You come with me, Corporal Lemon. Who is captain of this ship?"

"I am, sir," said Ephraim Savage submissively.

"You have three Huguenots aboard."

"Tut, tut. Huguenots, are they? I thought they were very anxious to get away, but as long as they paid their passage it was no business of mine. An old man, his young daughter and a young fellow about your age in some sort of livery."

"In uniform, sir—the uniform of the king's guard. Those are the folk I have come for."

"And you wish to take them back?"

"Most certainly."

"The old man is in his bunk asleep. The maid is in a cabin below, and the other is sleeping down the hold."

"Sleeping, you say? We had best surprise him."

"But think you that you dare do it alone? He has no arms, it is true, but he is a well grown young fellow. Will you not have twenty men up from the boat?"

Some such thought had passed through the officer's head, but the captain's remark put him upon his mettle.

"Come with me, corporal," said he. "Down this ladder, you say?"

"Yes, down the ladder and straight on. He lies between those two cloth hales." Ephraim Savage looked on.

EMERY'S ATTITUDE

The interview with Lewis Emery, Jr., defeated fusion candidate for Governor, which was recently made public reveals in him just those traits of character that go to make up a patriot, a true American citizen. It is a fact worthy of note that during the late hotly contested political battle nothing was said detrimental to the personal character of the Governor-elect, save the fact that the company he was in would control him, and now that the battle is ended and Mr. Stuart has won, his late opponent comes out and pays a high tribute to the successful candidate, and continues, saying:

I am proud of the courageous and indomitable spirits whose loyalty to the principle of civic righteousness did not weaken at the polls. I am grateful to the thinking men of the state, and, especially, to my neighbors, for their splendid testimonial, and I pledge to them, and to all other good citizens, that I shall serve in the ranks as faithfully as though I bore the burden of high official responsibility. I pledge undiminished ardor to the cause for which I have labored for more than a generation, and which will eventually triumph.

I earnestly hope that the incoming administration will keep all the pledges made by its head, for whom I have high personal regard. The principles to which he has pledged devotion were first enunciated by the Lincoln State convention. Insofar as he shall fulfill his promises, I believe that Mr. Stuart, as Governor, will receive the support of those who voted for me.

Meanwhile, I trust that all friends of real reform will stand together, determined to wage such a battle as the future may show to be necessary to re-establish constitutional representative government, honestly administered.

If the incoming administration will keep all the promises made by the head of the ticket on the stump and in the platform the state will be benefited. The Railroad Rate bill will become a reality, the trolley lines will be given permission to carry freight and should be given the same privileges as steam roads with regard to condemning property and securing right-of-way; the conditions at the state capital will be, if the promises are kept, thoroughly investigated and not whitewashed by a fake committee.

These reforms may be expected, and many others, if Mr. Stuart is sincere and has the courage of his convictions. The answer to the question as to his ability to withstand the pressure that will be brought to bear upon him by the gang and the Pennsylvania Railroad and the Standard Oil companies, which institutions had much to do with his election, must be seen, not heard—seen in the course of the Governor-elect while filling the official post.

Pure Gold Seldom Seen

Pure gold is of one unvarying and unchanging color, but few people ever see such gold. The kind used as money or for jewelry has alloy in it after it is manufactured into the desired article. In medicine, however, there is one remedy that can always be relied on for its purity and that is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. In its composition is used only the very best and purest ingredients, and its increasing popularity is proof that the public appreciates this one pure remedy. Therefore we urge you to insist on having Hostetter's with our Private Stamp over the neck of the bottle. It always cures poor appetite, sick headache, vomiting, indigestion, dyspepsia, flatulency, female ills, chills, colds or malarial fever. Don't fail to try a bottle at once.

Letter From Mr. Thropp

Earlston, Pa., Nov. 14, 1906.
To the thousands of upright citizens throughout our 19th District who favored my election to Congress, I wish, through the public press, to extend my sincere thanks. Nominated as I was this year, as in 1904, against my repeated protests, I stood loyally by my friends. We have been out-numbered. The result will relieve me from much arduous work, for when I was your representative before, I made the performance of my public duties paramount to the care of my own business, and so it would have been again had I been returned. After meeting thousands of you over the district and receiving reports from many parts of the state, I feel justified in saying the results of the election, not only in our own, but in other states, is worthy of the most careful study and analysis by all our people. In Philadelphia—Gibsony—the man who has for years been the champion of purity and who was endorsed by thousands of the philanthropic citizens, who contribute so much to the welfare of the city, and by hundreds of ministers of all denominations, was defeated by the representative of a "machine," whose leaders declared: "We must put an end to this talk of civic righteousness." "Who cares for the Courts and the Magistrates?" "We'll run things today the way we want them." In our state the exposure of what seems to honest people, as the most gigantic corruption, at Harrisburg, has not aroused enough of the people to cause them to vote "to turn the rascals out." In a local town, we could hear: "Three cheers for the gang." "Three cheers for the machine." "We have a machine that works."

With a heart full of faith in the ultimate triumph of that "righteousness which exalteth a nation," and with renewed thanks, I am,
Faithfully yours,
Joseph E. Thropp.

Demonstrations for Next Week

It is to be hoped that the farmers and fruit growers will avail themselves of the opportunity and attend the spraying demonstrations. It is not a question of whether they have time or not, because you will not have the opportunity of seeing how to save your trees and crops if you let this opportunity go by unattended.

Monday, November 19, at Clayton Smith's, just outside of Charlesville.
Tuesday, November 20, at N. W. Diehl's, also of Friend's Cove.
Wednesday, November 21, at Samuel Beegle's in Snake Spring Valley.

Thursday, November 22, at Joseph Wyles' in the upper end of Snake Spring Valley.

Friday, November 23, at Charles Reighard's, just north of Belden. The demonstrations will begin at 1 p. m. sharp and will consist of preparing the mixture, during which time short talks are given explaining the scale, examining twigs, etc.

After the mixture is prepared it is strained into the barrel and a block of trees are sprayed. If we have time a retouching will follow. If these demonstrations are not patronized they will be discontinued and Bedford county will not get its share of the work.

Yours fraternally,
R. F. Lee,
Inspector and Demonstrator.

"Fallina"

Among the books in the form of novels that have proved especially interesting in recent weeks, "Fallina," by Mrs. Rosa Meyers Mumma occupies a prominent place. It depicts modern American social life as it really is and not as it appears from a distance. It is not drawn out to fill pages but is concise and to the point. The author has kept in mind the fact that this is a busy age and she has gone into detail only so far as is necessary to make clear her thought and at the same time hold interest.

The story is comprehensive and is written in a style that is clear and strong. It cannot fail to hold interest throughout and to leave in the mind a wholesome influence. [The author, Mrs. Rosa Meyers Mumma, is a daughter of Hon. B. F. Meyers, a former editor of The Gazette. The book will be sent to any address by mail on receipt of $1.00, by the Roxburg Pub. Co., Boston.]

TRAGEDY IN SOMERSET COUNTY

Mrs. Catherine Stauffer Struck on the Head and Instantly Killed.

One of the most sensational murders in the long and gruesome list of Somerset county crimes was committed last Friday morning at the home of Mrs. Catherine Stauffer, near Lambertsville, when that lady was struck on the head with a hammer and instantly killed. When found she was lying on her bed in a pool of blood. Robbery is thought to have been the motive for the crime, as Mrs. Stauffer was known to possess considerable means, although she never kept any great amount of money in her home.

Mrs. Catherine Stauffer was the widow of William Stauffer, who died about three years ago. She was 65 years of age. Funeral services were held in the Lambertsville Lutheran church on Sunday, Rev. Daubenstein of Shanksville officiating. It is estimated that at least 700 persons attended the obsequies, the assembly being the largest that ever gathered there for a funeral. The interment followed in the church cemetery.

Constable William Grove of Stonycreek township and other officers who are working on the case, have to this time discovered no clue which promises to lead to the capture of the murderer.

Saxton
November 14—Cloyd Berkstresser of our town and Miss Bessie Reed of Huntingdon were married at the bride's home in Huntingdon last Thursday. They will reside in Bellwood.

George Schartz of Altoona has been the guest of friends in our town during the past few days.
Miss Maud Crum of Salter has come to Saxton to spend the winter with friends.

Miss Lillian Thompson, who has been quite ill, we are glad to note is able to be out again.
Prof. B. W. Peck, editor of the Fulton County News, spent Tuesday and Wednesday with William Hoke. Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Spangler, of Wells Valley, spent the past week as the guests of their daughter, Mrs. Hoke, on Railroad avenue.

Work at the Saxton furnace is being pushed rapidly. It is expected to be in blast by the first of the year. News of the furnace starting has caused quite a demand for houses which are very scarce.

Harry Stapleton and Mr. Wine-land, of Bellwood, will spend a few days in town at the home of the former. They expect to do some hunting while here.
Mr. Dave and Harvey Pasti, of Hollidaysburg, spent a few days in town while on a hunting trip.
Rev. McGuire of the Church of God is holding revival services at Coalmont.

Defiance
November 13—We are in the midst of a very interesting and helpful revival service, conducted in the M. E. church by our pastor, R. C. Peters of Riddlesburg. A number of persons have expressed their willingness to forsake sin and lead a better life and many more are expected to make the good resolve.

Rev. H. C. Rose of Saxton had his boy choir up last Sunday and entertained a crowded house for about one hour. The boys deserve much praise for the manner in which they sang their different parts. The music was of a high order and some of it was quite difficult, and yet there wasn't a break through the whole performance. Their ages range from about eight to 12 years. The reader may therefore imagine the patience Rev. Rose had to exercise in order to teach those children such difficult music. We do not wonder so much at their ability to read the music as we do at the skillful manner in which they express themselves. Their visit among us has been more than interesting. It was the means of giving encouragement to our boys, and we hope that very soon they too may be organized into a boys' choir. Rev. Rose gave an interesting talk on the subject of Boy Choir work, which was enjoyed by all. He is certainly doing a good thing for the boys.

The change in the weather has brought several cases of pneumonia among the children of our village. The coal business on Six Mile Run is booming just now.

George Lynn has moved from our town to the borough of Saxton, where he will take charge of a restaurant. Mr. Lynn's house will be occupied by Thomas Howells. B.

New Buena Vista
November 13—Hunters are more plentiful than game, which seems to be rather scarce.
Robert Shippy spent several days hunting and visiting hereabouts.
Mr. Jefferies of Philadelphia spent several days here visiting at the home of J. S. Zeigler and doing some hunting.

Ross Shippy is home for a short time after spending the summer near Hooversville.
Joshua Kerr is remodeling his hotel; when finished it will be a very comfortable hostelry.

C. B. Mowry of New Buena Vista and Miss Margaret Corley of Kegs were joined in holy wedlock on Thursday of last week by the Rev. C. W. Warlick of Mann's Choice. May their way through life be as bright as the sunshine on a cloudless summer day.

Fryan
November 13—The cold wind and snow on Monday brought felt boots and gloves into play with the corn huskers.

Miss Cora Hillegass left on Sunday for Johnstown, where she will spend the winter.

John Bence made a business trip to Shanksville on Friday.
Aaron Rose, one of Helixville's hustling merchants, who had been passing through our vicinity for the past few weeks taking orders for goods and delivering them, made his last trip on Friday. Mr. Rose says he will have to resign the business as his health and his advanced age will not permit it. He says he will still do business at the old stand in Helixville.

Peter Hillegass gave a corn husking at his place, one mile west of here, Wednesday afternoon. About 60 persons were present. A fine supper was prepared, to which all did ample justice. Dancing was indulged in till a late hour, when the guests departed for their homes thanking Mr. Hillegass and wife for the fine time they had.

Herbert Rue expects to leave in a few weeks for Philadelphia, where he will attend a medical college.
G. E. McCreary was a business caller at Schellsburg Saturday evening.

Russell Hillegass made a special trip to Bucktown on Sunday.
Rolla Hillegass recently accepted a position as traveling salesman for a rubber factory. We wish him success in his new field of labor.

Uncle Tom.

Centreville
November 14—The thirteen and one-half months' old baby boy of Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Cesna died of cholera infantum on November 7. The little fellow had been sick for several months but the doctor's skill or kind nursing could not restore him to health. Interment was made on Thursday in the Bethel M. E. cemetery, Rev. A. H. Green officiating.
Frederick Oster left on Monday for Columbus, O., to join his regiment. He came home on a furlough in August, and on September 17 he shot himself through the foot, which kept him until this late date.
Mrs. Mary Hartsauk and Miss Ora Nave came home last week from a three weeks' visit at Baltimore, Washington and Franklin City, Va. They report a fine time.

New Paris
November 12—Winter appears to have commenced in good faith. A great deal of corn is to husk yet.
Alonzo F. Holderbaum took charge of a school as teacher near Purgitsville, W. Va., on Monday.

John O. Blackburn and George Mann, of this place, and Clewell C. Cuppitt and Ambrose Callihan, of Ryot, left on November 5 for Florida, where they expect to spend the winter picking oranges.

The Sabbath schools of New Paris will hold a union convention on Thanksgiving in the M. E. church. There will be a morning, an afternoon and an evening session. During the forenoon session, Rev. E. C. Musselman of the Reformed church will deliver a Thanksgiving sermon. Caj.

NEW YORK LETTER

Number One Thousand Five Hundred Thirty-Eight

THE NEW YORK ELECTIONS

The Result Evenly Divided Between The Democrats and the Republicans—Mr. Hughes.

Special to The Gazette.

New York, November 14.—It is not often in the history of political contests, state or national, that both parties are substantially victorious, but that is what actually occurred in the State of New York on the sixth day of November last—and if you don't believe it foot up the returns and see what each party got as a reward for being patriots, making nine or ten speeches every day, and saving our imperiled country. Tammany got all the judges and all the big commissions of which there are quite a number; they employ thousands of men whose votes can be counted on when election day comes around, when no man unused to Tammany's system of aggregation can estimate the value of such an auxiliary force especially in districts where the vote is close and the majorities are gamblers on by tens instead of thousands; the patronage secured by the Democrats will not fall short of a million of dollars; quite a number of the salaries run from $3,000 to $5,000. At state or national elections the assessment is ten per cent., Civil Service Reform to the contrary, notwithstanding. Don't for a moment suppose that any of the Tammany managers are going to make war on Civil Service Reform; no man holding a Federal office or a state office will ever be assessed for political office as he was in the olden time; no man has hinted to him that if his check is not found among the receipts of the party treasurer, it were better for him in the day of wrath that a millstone were tied about his neck and that he were thrown into the sea.

While the Republicans make no such a cash result as the Democrats, they have secured the honorable results of their victory in the election of their candidate for Governor and the capture of such a majority in the Legislature as secures the election of a Republican Senator, a prize of more political value than all the gold and silver captured by the Democrats. It also gives them the complete control of the government of the state, and while it may be true that the Democrats have possession of all the great and profitable commissions, the Legislature has power to regulate and control them and in certain conditions to abolish them altogether.

Now that the election is passed and we are able to sit quietly down and take a survey of the battlefield, succor the wounded and bury the dead, the charges and counter-charges made by opposing parties are like those of Sergeant Puff and Corporal Boom in the comic opera, if it were not for the serious part that they play on the minds of the ignorant who derive what little of historic knowledge they may have from the tramp orators who disposed of historic information to the voters who hold that inestimable prize, the free-man's ballot.

The morning after election a lady of my acquaintance met the janitor of the department house and asked him how he liked the election. "I don't be likin' it at all; at all, mum; I don't go a cint on this Hughes." "Why, James, what is the matter with Mr. Hughes? he is a gentleman." "I dunno; is he? But he's got the dirty drop o' blood in him; he is descended from Oliver Cromwell, and you know that Cromwell never liked the Irish." "What has that got to do with our Mr. Hughes?" We know something about the Hughes right here in New York. The grandest Priest that the Roman Catholic church has ever known was John

Hughes, Bishop of New York; he was not only great as a Priest, and a faithful son and champion of the church which he loved and served, but he was as loyal an American citizen as ever was born on American soil.

When the rebellion broke out and eleven states in the south attempted to sever the Federal compact and destroy the union, Bishop Hughes, hearing that a strong effort was being made to debauch the minds of his fellow countrymen and to have them enlist in the armies of the south, hastened to England and made his first speech in the city of Manchester; he was served with a notice in the afternoon that if he attempted to speak on the United States he would be mobbed; nothing daunted him; he went to the hall unattended and as he stepped on the stage he was greeted with such a storm of yells and hisses as would have terrified a less courageous man but he stood there facing the rabble crowd till they were tired; then he began slowly; he told the story of slavery till tears rolled down the cheeks of hundreds and when he closed he held that vast audience in the hollow of his hand. The Hughes have for a hundred generations been of the gentry class, they were always leaders and chieftains; the race is pure Celt Irish, and fighters to the core; where the stock has been maintained untainted you will find them with dark hair and eyes just like our Governor elect. They are of a prolific race and you find them everywhere. Red heads or fair haired stock are not common in the Hughes class; when the Saxons and Danes made a descent on the Island of Saints hunting for wives, besides taking away all they could carry they left behind the fair haired, and "carrotty poll" is as much a term of reproach in certain parts of Ireland as it was twelve hundred years ago. THE BEDROOM.

It Should Have as Little Furniture in it as Possible.

Decorations and hangings for a bedroom should be of the daintiest material both in color and design. Printed dimity is quite the prettiest and most inexpensive to use in furnishing a sleeping apartment. Curtains, bedspread, dresser covers and chair cushions may be made of it, though for the latter chintz in the same design is heavier and more desirable. In the properly appointed modern bedroom as little furniture as possible is used. This insures proper sanitary conditions, for the less there is to collect dust the better.

The floor should be either plain varnished wood, with a few rugs on it, or a denim carpet tacked close to the wall. The bed is best of iron or brass, as it is less apt to collect dust or dirt. A pretty cover can be made for it of dimity, with ruffles at the edge, hanging well over the sides, but clearing the floor by several inches.

DON'TS FOR THIN WOMEN.

Don't walk to excess. A short walk will be beneficial, but long walks are flesh reducing.

Don't strive for long waisted effects. The longer you make yourself look the thinner you will appear.

Don't wear black. Black has a tendency to make any one look slender. Light clothes are the most becoming.

Don't stay up late at night. Get at least nine hours' good sleep. A woman needs more sleep than a man, and nothing keeps her in good condition like lots of sleep.

Don't wear stripes. Checks, plaids and horizontal effects are better for thin women. They should strive for becoming, deceiving effects if they study art in dressing at all.

Don't forget that a well rounded figure makes you look younger and is considered a mark of beauty. Starchy foods, massage, moderate exercise, rest and sleep should produce this.

A Sailor on Sea Pictures.

"I'll take a sailor along with me the next time I buy a marine painting," said a millionaire. "I bought two machines last month, and yesterday my old friend Captain Salthorse had a look at them."

"Salthorse said: 'In this first picture we've got a trading schooner in charge of a tug towing away from a rock bound coast through a fearful jumble of sea. The schooner's mainmast is gone, and all sails are lowered except her staysail, which is kept hoisted, though she is towing head on to the gale. Why that hoisted staysail? All hands, I suppose, are drunk.'"

"In the second picture," continued Captain Salthorse, "the principal boat, an eighteen footer, is racing, yet has no flag flying. That's as incorrect as it would be for you to go to a dinner party minus a shirt. The crew of this boat are getting in the spinnaker, and, if they lower away, both spinnaker and boom will be in the water, for they have neglected to let the boom go forward. But I know what the trouble is with them. They, too, are drunk."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

HARMFUL STOMACH DOSING

No Need of It When Hyomei Is Used to Cure Catarrh.

Do not try to cure catarrh of the head by dosing the stomach. This is neither common sense nor scientific, as the less medicine one swallows the better.

To cure catarrhal troubles, breathe the healing Hyomei and the medication will go right to the spot where the catarrhal germs are present, and free the system from all catarrhal poison.

F. W. Jordan has seen so many cures of catarrh made by Hyomei, some of them chronic cases, that he gives an absolute guarantee of cure or money will be refunded with every outfit he sells. The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1, while extra bottles of Hyomei if needed are but 50 cents.

The Little Toe to Go.

A comparative anatomist says that the little toe has got to go; that it is a useless appendage, already showing signs of degeneration or withering away. It is proved that the horse, in the course of several centuries, has dropped four toes and now travels on one, and some think that man's pedal extremities are bound to follow a similar line of evolution. In the horse it is the middle digit which has survived as the fittest. In man it will be the first or great toe.

In No Hurry.

An old citizen who had been henpecked all his life was about to die. His wife felt it her duty to offer him such consolation as she might and said: "John, you are about to go, but I will follow you."

"I suppose so, Manda," said the old man weakly, "but so far as I am concerned you don't need to be in any blamed hurry about it!"

Past, Present and Future.

Mrs. D. Vorcoe—If I could only forget the past! But, alas, it is ever before me! Mrs. Olden—You'll have a sad future with your past always present. Take my advice and leave the past behind for the present and live in the future for the future and not in the past.—Life.

SPENDING $17,000,000.00

Pennsylvania Railroad Said to Have Appropriated That Amount for Improvements in Pittsburgh.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 8.—Rumor is current that the Pennsylvania Railroad will soon award a contract whereby $17,000,000 will be expended in improving its terminals, enlarging its trackage facilities in the Greater Pittsburgh district. The latest report has it that this amount and perhaps more will be expended and that a new Union station will be erected on the block extending from Sixth avenue to Fifth avenue and from Grant street to Smithfield street. It is also probable that the square bounded by Sixth and Seventh avenues and by Smithfield and Grant streets will be utilized in this improvement.

The new Union station, it is said, will be the finest on the P. R. R. lines with the possible exception of its new New York City terminal. All the B. & O. trains will use the new station. The P. R. R. Company owns the property extending from the Union station at Twelfth street down to Seventh avenue, so it would not be a difficult matter to extend their tracks through to Fifth avenue.

The Home of Opportunity. Greater Pittsburgh is the greatest money-making center on earth—the home of iron, steel, coal and coke, plate glass, machinery, cork and various other products giving employment to hundreds of thousands. Her weekly payroll exceeds several millions. The capital of her banks and trust companies exceeds the combined capital, surplus and deposits of fifteen Southern states. She leads the world in tonnage. Her property value exceeds a billion dollars.

Fifth Avenue property which a few years ago sold for $5,500 a front foot is today selling at $18,000 per front foot. Smithfield St. property has advanced proportionately. Wood St., Liberty street and Penn Avenue property has advanced in like proportion. Residence property in the Oakland and East End districts has increased from 50 to 500 per cent. Throughout the Greater Pittsburgh district this increase has taken place. In McKeesport in the past five years business property has increased 400 per cent, the same rule of increase applies to its residence property. Wilmerding and East McKeesport real estate has increased from 100 to 500 per cent. The growth and increase has been natural, steady and stable. Investors have made more money in Greater Pittsburgh realty than in any other form of investment.

Where More Money Can Be Made. Right in the midst of Greater Pittsburgh's finest industrial district—between the Turtle Creek & Monongahela Valleys—lies Arlington Park—the heart of Greater Pittsburgh. Arlington Park is the center of a district that is paying out each year over $130,000,000.00 in wages. Arlington Park is a tract of 225 acres of practically level land subdivided into 225 lots. This tract adjoins Wilmerding at the head of Westinghouse avenue, but a few minutes walk from the P. R. R. station, where over 100 trains stop daily.

It also adjoins East McKeesport, and the belt car line connecting with every point in Allegheny county extends past it. Cars pass in both directions every 10 minutes. It is but 14 minutes ride from McKeesport and East Pittsburgh and but 30 minutes ride from Pittsburgh.

It has filtered city water, natural gas, electric light, schools, churches and stores which are practically on the plan. Its streets and avenues are wide and it fronts on the Greensburg pike—a thoroughfare 60 feet wide which the state is going to macadamize and increase in width to 100 feet without expense to property holders.

Within a stone's throw of Arlington Park, lots are selling for $1,500—and these lots are only 40x100 feet. In East McKeesport, 25x100 foot lots sell right alongside Arlington Park at stiff prices. These lots are not high priced—the prices asked being fair. Think of getting 10 to 15 such sized lots in Arlington Park for $390 to $2,500.

Arlington Park lots averaging one acre in size will admit of subdivision into from 10 to 15 city lots 25 feet front by 100 feet deep. These will cost the purchaser but from $35 to $170 per lot—while all around the plan lots of this size are selling for three times this amount.

Better send $25 today and secure an acre lot in Arlington Park. Remember you are getting 10 to 15 Lots for the Price of One.

Our object in dividing Arlington Park into such large lots was in order to dispose of it quickly. Many people wanted acre lots for their homes—fully 40 persons requested us to sell them an acre or more and almost all of them have purchased lots and houses are now in course of construction. Arlington Park, with its pure, fresh air, its conveniences—charming scenery and delightful view commands itself to the home builder. It is sufficiently attractive to the renter—therefore the builder or investor will make money by building houses there.

We positively guarantee that any unsold lot in Arlington Park at the end of the first year will not be sold for less than 25 per cent more than we are now asking. So you see you will have an investment that will pay you 25 Per Cent the First Year.

You can buy Arlington Park lots on easy terms. If you desire to pay cash we will allow you a discount of 10 per cent. If you wish, you can pay on monthly installments.

Twenty-five dollars down secures any lot—$2.00 to $25.00 a month pays for it.

Free Railroad Fare. Our illustrated folder will tell you how you can get a round trip fare free to Arlington Park. It will also tell you all about this wonderful opportunity. Write for it today, it's free.

Cheap Living in Norway.

"It is a good scheme," said a rich man, "to spend the summer in Norway. The Norwegian climate is superb, the scenery is grand and the living is cheap—a dollar a day at the hotels and carriages at a half dollar a day. One fine thing about Norway is that in the summer the night only lasts a couple of hours, and if you go as far as the North cape there is no night at all, but the sun circles round and round the horizon and never sinks below. The Norwegian rivers abound in fish, and any one is free to angle for trout in them. The salmon rivers, though, are strictly preserved. Some of the salmon rivers are very fine and rent for as much as $2,000 a year. I know a man who has a river only two miles long that he pays $1,800 for. He often gets fish sixty or seventy pounds. The day I called on him his wife came in with a forty pounder, a twenty-two pounder and a fifty-one pounder that she had caught herself within three hours."

A Forest of Giants.

It is almost impossible for one who has seen only the eastern or Rocky mountain forests to imagine the woods of the Pacific coast. Pictures of the big trees are as common as postage stamps, but the most wonderful thing about the big trees is that they are scarcely bigger than the rest of the forest. The Pacific coast bears only a tenth of our woodland, but nearly half of our timber. An average acre in the Rocky mountain forest yields one to two thousand board feet of lumber; in the southern forest, three to four thousand; in the northern forest, four to six thousand. An average acre on the Pacific coast yields fifteen to twenty thousand. Telescope the southern and Rocky mountain forests, toss the northern on top of them and stuff the central into the chinks, and, acre for acre, the Pacific forest will outweigh them all.—American Magazine.

HAPPY WOMEN.

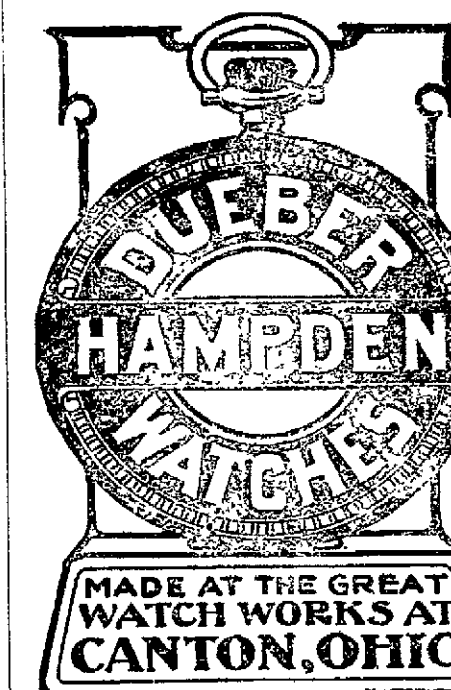

Wouldn't any woman be happy. After years of backache suffering. Days of misery, nights of unrest. The distress of urinary troubles. To find relief and cure? No reason why any reader should suffer in the face of evidence like this:

Mrs. Almira A. Jackson, of East Front St., Trarar, City, Mich., says: "For twenty years I was doctoring for kidney and liver trouble, but without benefit. Just before I began using Doan's Kidney Pills I was almost paralyzed. I could hardly stand on my feet because of the numbness and lack of circulation. Had a knife been thrust into my kidneys the pain could not have been more intense. My sleep was disturbed by visions of distorted figures. The kidney secretions were annoyingly irregular, and I was tortured with thirst and always bloated. I used seven boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills. The bloating subsided until I weighed 100 pounds less, could sleep like a child and was relieved of the pain and the irregularity of the kidney action. My circulation is good and I feel better in every way."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mrs. Jackson will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists; price, 50 cents per box.

A WORTHY CAUSE

Effort Being Made to Raise a Permanent Fund to ESTABLISH A HOME

At Huntingdon For the Poor Children of the Juniata Valley, by Prof. D. Emmert.

No form of philanthropic effort appeals alike to the heart and the mind more forcibly than that which aims to give helpless children a chance to be useful, happy and good—to the heart because of the instinctive love and sympathy for child needs; to the mind because to make good citizens and industrious, honest men and women we must begin with the children.—The Outlook.

[This space will be open for some weeks to Prof. D. Emmert of Huntingdon for the presentation of a plan to provide a permanent fund of $25,000 to endow a special agency for all classes of dependent children in several counties of the Juniata Valley. For over 25 years Prof. Emmert has been active in work for children, with results which justify the plea that is made for the fund. The Gazette heartily endorses the enterprise.]

The editor of this and the journals of the Juniata Valley have accorded me the privilege of occupying space in their columns. For some months, by personal interviews, I have endeavored to bring before the people "a plan" for the help of the poor children in the Juniata Valley. The favor with which the movement has been received is most encouraging. I realize my inability to see all who may be interested. Urgent demands upon my time lead me to accept gratefully the courtesy of the press. Not long ago, in an incidental way, a lady of a distant city became acquainted with our work and at her request I briefly explained the plan. She expressed her approval, and very promptly handed me a check for $1,000. I felt I had no claim upon her and apologized for a rather earnest presentation of the cause. She reminded me in kindly spirit of the "duty" to speak, "that those who will may help." And so, in season and out of season, from henceforth I have resolved by tongue and pen "to speak," if strength permits, until the work is done.

Twenty-five years ago a little company of sympathetic people in the town of Huntingdon set about to help some poor families. They gathered into small quarters a few destitute children. With twenty cents in hand and the promise of $25 a small house was taken and the work begun in faith but entire ignorance of the responsibility there and then assumed. The years since have been full of care; but the fact that many of the early workers who survive are still active, is proof that results have justified the effort. What has been done is only a shadow of what may be done by intelligent co-operation. Other similar societies have been established; hundreds of poor children have been helped temporarily or passed on to families; many have had hospital care without cost; thousands of dollars have been freely given and thousands more have been set aside for the various institutions.

I am asked of our greatest need. It is not houses. We have them. It is not bread—we may have that for the asking. It is SUPERVISION. It was Job who said, "I was eyes to the blind, feet was I to the lame, I was a father to the poor and the cause which I knew not I searched out." We need to search for causes and apply remedies, give help to preserve self-helpfulness and not to make beggars and paupers.

If this work is worth doing it is worth doing well. To do it well, it must be somebody's chief concern.

I have been so deeply impressed with this thought through the years of our own strenuous experience, in the consciousness of our shortcomings, that I resolved to make an effort to establish a definite fund, in limited territory, for the employment of a missionary or agent to children. This agent, with the aid of the public, will consider all cases of need or neglect, investigate and place children in homes, secure hospital treatment when necessary, and act as juvenile court agent, if it so please the Court.

Twenty-Five Thousand Dollars. The interest of this amount will make possible this agency and guarantee the operation of such a system as cannot be maintained by voluntary service from men who are burdened with business and subject to fluctuations of enthusiasm.

The details of plans and methods of administration of the trust will be fully set forth at another time.

For the encouragement of those who doubt, or think that an impossible task, I may say that I have received in cash and pledges, over ten thousand dollars, and many promises of help later on. The fact that among these amounts are seven $1,000; three $500, and the balance $100, $50 and $25, and smaller sums, is proof of no ordinary interest.

The fund is at present held by three trustees appointed by the managers of the home. It is the purpose to secure a charter, and have trustees appointed by the Court. Every cent will be strictly accounted for and a detailed report made at the proper time. Those who have given have done so in most generous spirit, and have, in many instances, forestalled solicitation by kindly offers.

It is possible that this movement for close and definite organization will extend to other counties. If this should result, co-operation will bring about the most efficient system yet devised for the help of needy children in this section of the state.

Desirable as it might be to complete the task of raising this money at the earliest possible date, both from the standpoint of time and expense, it is a matter of real value to the future that a canvass be made that all details of the system be fully known.

We invite correspondence. If this proposition commends itself to you, will you not express your desire to co-operate without obligating yourself for any definite amount? This note may mean more than you can measure. It may mean all to some poor child who may be guided by your sympathy to a home of love and plenty. It may mean much to us in locating centers of interests. We confidently commend to the Christian ministry and to societies of Christian workers of all classes, this movement which is in the broadest sense, nonsectarian. Here is a field in which all willing workers may join hands. Whether Jew or Gentile, Catholic or Protestant, in the cause of humanity, we are a common brotherhood.

D. Emmert.

When your Watch Stops

You cannot make it go by shaking it. When the bowels are constipated you can disturb them with cathartics but, like the watch, they will not be able to do their allotted work until they are put into proper condition to do it.

One cannot mend a delicate piece of mechanism by violent methods, and no machine made by man is as fine as the human body.

The use of pills, salts, castor-oil and strong cathartic medicines is the violent method. The use of the herb tonic laxative,

Eugene is the commercial center of the county. "Drop a dollar anywhere in Lane county and it will roll into Eugene as naturally as water runs down hill."

The old-time idea of producing raw material only is passing away. The manufacturing era is to prevail on the western stage. There are three sawmills, one of which is the largest and best equipped in the state. There are woolen mills, flour mills, a match factory, an excelsior plant, shops for the manufacture of furniture, sash and doors, and knife works. The largest vinegar factory in the state is located here. There are also foundries and a fruit canning plant and a score of minor industries. Lane county has thirty-four thousand million feet of standing timber on its hills; 200,000 surveyed horsepower in its streams. There are one hundred sixty-eight public school buildings in the county, besides the thirty-four thousand dollar high school and the state university buildings located at Eugene. This has attracted the best class of citizens and the social atmosphere is of the highest order. There are no saloons.

Hop-raising is extensive and profitable, the average yield being fifteen hundred pounds per acre and the price eighteen cents a pound. There are thousands of acres of unused land, suitable for hops, that can be bought for $15 to $50 per acre.

Lane county for quantity of timber is far ahead of any county of the United States. When this timber is converted into lumber at $15 per thousand, it will bring $500,000,000. Four counties in the state of Oregon have enough timber that, if sold as lumber, would exceed by more than three times the entire assessed valuation of the state. It is just simply impossible to comprehend the timber of Oregon. More than 1,600,000 acres of Lane county are still under government control. It is fortunately on the line between "too hot" and "too dry," and has the happy medium of thirty-five inches average annual rainfall. Natural conditions are ideal; it enjoys the warm southern winds of winter season and the cool ocean breezes in sultry summer. Nor is there one of these features that is not already giving somebody something to do, something encouraging in the prospect it offers for the prosperity and distinction of tomorrow. A glowing new life has come upon the west. Things are doing again, as they did in '49 and '50's and the Comstock periods of the '70's.

The past summer in Oregon has been a normal one and the people go into another autumn of good feeling and high promises of solid prosperity. The railroads never had so much to haul, all the army of industry has work and wages. The pilgrim who visits Oregon and the northwest will find in this far western country scenic wonders, fertile acres, a delightful climate, giant cities, and a western hospitality that will convince them that "the northwest corner" is one of the most wonderful, fruitful and inviting regions on the continent.

Cured of Bright's Disease

Mr. Robert O. Burke, Elmore, N. Y., writes: "Before I started to use Foley's Kidney Cure I had to get up from twelve to twenty times a night, and I was all bloated up with dropsy and my eyesight was so impaired I could scarcely see one of my family across the room. I had given up hope of living, when a friend recommended Foley's Kidney Cure. One 50 cent bottle worked wonders and before I had taken the third bottle the dropsy had gone, as well as all other symptoms of Bright's disease." Ed. D. Heckerman.

Coddled Apples

Coddled apples are made by steaming or parboiling sweet apples that have been cored and then simmering them in a syrup made from sugar and water, or the water the apples were boiled in. This syrup must have sliced lemon in it. Do not let the apples break to pieces. Sweet apples are chosen because they hold their shape better than sour ones. When thoroughly done and flavored through and through with the rich lemon syrup dish them and pour the syrup over. Boil down if necessary. This is a delicious way to cook apples. They can be cooked in the syrup in a double boiler, a few at a time.

A Few Skirt Tips

And now, taking those side pleats that are let into each seam, sometimes at flounce depth, sometimes at knee and even hip depth, these often have a habit of hanging in a kind of sag so that their lower edges show below the bottom of the skirt, says the New York Evening Telegram. When they do this, just take a medium wide tape, the circumference of the skirt, and baste it all around inside the skirt at the head of the pleats.

Pin the head of these pleats to the tape, try on the skirt and adjust the pins until the pleats hang perfectly, then removing the skirt, sew the tape down to the heads of pleats only, and release the basting thread. If the skirt is very heavy, another strip of tape may be sewn to the head of each pleat, one end to the pleats, then taken diagonally across the next seam, something on the same principle as one sees strips of canvas sewn into coats, one end at the armhole and the other at the outer corner of the pocket. It acts as a kind of stay.

The many-gored skirts that should hang in a perfect flare or graceful flutes, but simply won't, is another problem to many. Here again the most trifling detail has been, perhaps, given all attention, yet with dire results. The skirt is not too full, yet instead of rippling or flaring, as it is expected to do, it just flaps. Then a taping is put in, or an interlining, something that shall make it stand out, even against its will, yet the result is only additional weight; the hang of the skirt is no better. In this case, the set is all in the finishing of the seams.

They must be gashed around every curve, and carefully pressed.

The New York World

THIRICE-A-WEEK EDITION.

Read Wherever the English Language is Spoken.

The Thrice-A-Week World, now that a Great Presidential campaign is foreshadowed, hopes to be a better paper than it has ever been before, and it has made its arrangements accordingly. Its news service covers the entire globe, and it reports everything fully, promptly and accurately. It is the only newspaper, not a daily, which is as good as a daily, and which will keep you as completely informed of what is happening through out the world.

The Thrice-A-Week World is fair in its political reports. You can get the truth from its columns, whether you are a Republican or Democrat, and that is what you want.

A special feature of the Thrice-A-Week World has always been its serial fiction. It publishes novels by the best authors in the world, novels which in book form sell for $1.50 apiece, and its high standard in this respect will be maintained in the future as in the past.

THE THIRICE-A-WEEK WORLD'S regular subscription price is only $1.00 per year, and this pays for 156 papers. We offer this unequalled newspaper and The Gazette together for one year for $2.20.

The regular subscription price of the two papers is $2.50.

The Cleansing Potato

It is not generally known that the potato possesses great cleansing properties. Cold potatoes, when used instead of soap, clean the hands well and keep the skin soft. The water in which potatoes have been boiled is excellent for sponging out dirt from silk.

Pinesolve cleanses wounds, is highly antiseptic, unequalled for cracked hands. Good for cuts. Sold by J. Reed Irvine

Barnett's Store

In the Long Run,

It's the man who turns out the best work who gets the best results. Veneering, imitations, shams may hold the boards for a time, and throw a glamour from the foot-lights; but in the long run, the public recognizes true merit, which, in the end, is the only thing that counts.

The success of our business is due to a combination of the best values that modern ingenuity can produce with a service that is careful, painstaking and faithful.

THANKSGIVING Only a Few Days Off

How is your stock of Table Linen, Napkins, China, Silver Knives, Forks and Spoons? We keep an elegant assortment of these goods and can save you considerable on each item.

F U R S

All grades, colors and styles. Fur weather will soon be here. Don't put off buying until the choicest numbers are gone. We have nearly everything you could wish for in this line, from 50c to $30.00. If we don't have—we will get it for you.

Handsome Under-Muslins at Cost of Material

This week we have received a magnificent assortment of Muslin Underwear—Gowns, Skirts, Drawers, Corset Covers, &c. We have never had such a good line of these garments, and prices are very reasonable considering the high cost of Muslin.

Drawers 25c to $1.98.

Corset Covers 15c to $3.00.

Robes 50c to $3.00.

Skirts 50c to $3.50.

Paint

Are your buildings in good shape to stand the hard weather this winter? If not,—better let us sell you paint and save them before they decay beyond repair. A few dollars spent for a good paint, will save you a big bill for repairs. It is not too late to fix up your buildings. Three or four weeks of painting weather yet. Try B. P. S. paints—you'll not regret it. We keep everything that goes with paint—Brushes, Oil, Turpentine, Varnishes, Fillers, &c.

MONEYBAK BLACK SILKS

The longer we sell Moneybak silks the more pleased we are with them.

We can't sell so many yards of Moneybak as we do of the cheaper silks, but we know that every Moneybak sale means lasting satisfaction.

During the time we've been selling Moneybak—more than two years—we've had but one claim presented to us, which we think a remarkably good record; and though the circumstances clearly indicated more than ordinary hard usage, the claim was promptly allowed.

Moneybak black silks are guaranteed not to cut out, split, crack nor fade under any reasonable usage. If they should, bring them in and get your money back.

$1.25, $1.40, $1.50, $1.75 and $2.00 yard.

More New Coats

in this week---all beauties--
Handsome Blacks, Castors and Plaids and Mixtures.
